

JON CRUDDAS AND HIS SINISTER FRIENDS.

Dear Colleague,

With the party leadership changes imminent, one name being touted for the position of Deputy-Leader, or Deputy-Prime Minister, using John Prescott's adopted title, is the MP for Dagenham, Jon Cruddas.

Jon is a young, charismatic figure with a good background in the party but, unfortunately he is somewhat tainted because of his very public association with the Searchlight organisation, and its "Labour Friends of Searchlight".

Jon must surely know that any elevation off of the back benches will open him up to increased media attention and his links with Searchlight could be his undoing.

Searchlight, for those who don't know, is a private limited company with the majority shareholders being Gerry Gable and his wife Sonia Gable.

Mr Gable has a conviction for theft.

Mrs Gable is a member of the Liberal Democrats and stood as a Lib-Dem candidate against Labour opposition in the 2006 local elections. Mrs Gable works as a tax consultant and spends much of her working life helping rich clients to find tax loopholes.

Politically she was once a member of the National Front.

Grahame Atkinson is Searchlight's European correspondent and was once sacked for disloyalty by a previous employer, the Communist Party of Britain.

As long ago as 1976 a Birmingham magistrate, labelled the Searchlight organisation as "scurrilous" for inciting violence against political opponents.

If elected Deputy-Leader, the media will have a field day!

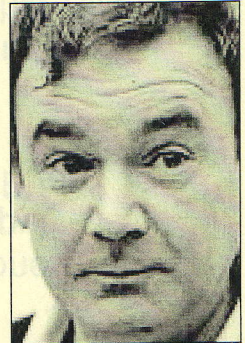

For sake of the Labour Party, Jon Cruddas must immediately declare he will not stand for the Deputy-Leadership or alternately, very publicly resign from the Labour Friends of Searchlight.

Nothing else will do!
